A Sen Francisco correspondent writes :- For several years there has been domiciled at the Mo terey County Hospital an Indian known by the name of "Old Gabriel." As to the exact day, month, or year of his birth, proof is wanting but of the fact that he has passed the wonderful age of 150 years there is a quantity of evidence. He was born in Tulary County, but during childhood removed to the town of Monterey. Father Junipero Serra arrived in Menterey in 1770, and it is well authenticated that at that time Gabriel was a grandfather. The youngest age at which an Indian married was 15 years. If Gabriel followed the custom and married at that date, he would necessarily have been at least 32 or 33 years old to have been a grandfather at the time of Father Junipero's landing there. Father Junipero taught ciabriol the art of cutting and laying stone, and at the cause of building the first chapel, in the years 1771 and 1772, Gabriel as: came so expert at his trade that he managed the the constrution of the sen Antonio Mission in 1781. He then married his second wife. Father Sorrentini, the priest, and Bishop Amat resched Monterey some time in the year 1845. Professor Baldwin, in a recent address before a body of lawyers in Chicago, made this declara. On London.tion :- Another characteristic of modern government is its support from journalism. It is not too much to say that it could not exist, and could not have existed without it, less from the direct influence which it exerts, than from the publicity and close scrutiny of official action which it secures. Until 100 years ago, legisla dored doors. Journalism, during this century, Bank Bills has demanded that they be thrown open, and considered law, and no law can be well considered that has not been fully discussed in public, by the men whose interests it concerns. Here. I think, had been the great work of the newspaper in politics. It has turned on the electric light. Its direct influence on the masses of the people may be easily overrated. It acts on the politicians more than on the community at large. It distributes offices and brings meninto power, but it is often forced to think and touch with the real movements of public

The Englishman was flattered, and allowed himself to be put in position. One moment was sufficient, and the tourist went on his way glowing under the Station. warmth of the Frenchman's thanks - and minns

An interesting treasure trove was apparthed | various at Melbourne recently at the Will ams Town hanges are stagmers, at which all the large seagoing doughous stagmers, the P. and O. and Orient lines, &c.—
Ship and discharge their cargoes and passengers. Venila Two boys, whilst playing about the pier, saw a Apping mouse run into a hole close to one of the pillars of the platform, and, thinking to have some fun. they got a stick and commenced moving it about in the hole for the mouse. They suddenly heard a chinking sound which provoked their curiosity, and very soon came pouring out on them a stream of "glittering, precious gold" in the Tokie shape of sovereigns, bearing the Sydney mintage. Neganki ... The boyscarried off, a "they stated, 2:2 sovereigns between them, with which they returned to Bondons. their parants, having first carefully concealed the arphone ... hole from common observation. Fortunately for the real owners of the poin. the boys and their anding parents were honest, the police authorities were communicated with a systematic exploration took place, whereupon a further flud, making up in all 3.742 sovereign , was seenred. As may be supposed, such an incident orested a sensation which attracted thousands to the spot, both from Melbourne and Williams Town. At present it is supposed that this treasure is a portion of a box of gold, containing 5,000 sovereigns, which in May last was found to be missing from the Iberia, at that time commanded by Captain Shannon. The box had been shipped smong others at Sydney in the March preceding, and must have been atolen while the vessel was lying at the Williams Town railway pier. In consequence of this loss the captain, the second officer, and purser, the officers responsible for Weather the treasure, resigned, although there was notain thing to justify suspicion of any of them. As the third could not be traced, it is supposed that he must have got, in some unguarded moment, an impression of the key of the treasure room, and thus was able to abstract one of the boxes. Each box contained sovereigns, so that assuming the property found to be identical with the Iberia's loss, a large sum is still missing. It is not nulikely that more than one person was concorned in this audacious thatt, seeing that a bex of gold containing 5,000 sovereigns, weighs something like a hundred pounds, a difficult percel for one man to carry, and afterwards by himself to be planted where the sovereigns were
